Throughout the year, the SPIRIT staff went UNDERCOVER to capture the stories of your life. The rebellious senior class questioned authority by protesting a ban on tailgating and stood up for their beliefs by protesting a possible war with Iraq. The Varsity Football team proved their might by triumphing over Valley, the #1 team in the state, in six overtimes. Art teacher Dorothy Gugel won the Secondary Art Teacher of the Year Award. Both the Girls' and Boys' Cross Country teams returned to State after a two year absence. Once again, there was an abundance of National Merit Semi-Finalists. The Drama and Choral Departments put on the second annual musical, "Guys and Dolls." It may have been another typical year at Ames High, but it was the people under this cover who made it unique.

Getting Grilled

Mission 001: Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to track down the students of Ames High as they bask in their summertime freedom from school. Search for your target at the pool where they will be spending as much time with friends as possible. If necessary, you may have to follow your target all the way to Europe, as they try to get as far away from Ames, Iowa as possible. Track down students as they pine away day after day to earn a few bucks at their summer jobs. If you fail to complete this mission, the students will continue to enjoy themselves year after year and summer break will continue to flourish.

MIND THE GAP

Story by: Cathy Compton
and Rachel Elliott

8 Countries, 15 cities, 24 days, 57 friends. These numbers added together equated paradise for the Ames High students who went on an educational tour of Europe this summer. From the in-flight meals to sword shopping in Spain, most everyone who went on the trip would agree that the experience ranks among their favorite in high school. Most students who went on the trip had taken the AP Western Civilization class during their junior year. Thus, seeing the artwork and cathedrals they had learned about all year made it all the more meaningful. "When I walked into the museum in Amsterdam and saw 'The Night Watch,' I couldn't believe my eyes," senior Katie Gidlewski said.

"What was awesome was how close we all became."

While some travelers had detailed plans about what they wanted to do in each city, others were content with immersing themselves in the culture. "Some of my favorite memories are from when we were dead tired and eating gelato on an Italian street corner," senior Annie Vleck said.

Highlights of the tour included a trip to the top of the Eiffel tower, a tour of downtown London, and a night out at a Disco in Florence. "What was so awesome was how close we all became," senior Rachel Elliott said. "Not only were we all in awe of everything around us, but we were experiencing it together. We really became a family."

"I would have to disagree about that family part," senior Matt Orazem joked. "The girls kept playing pranks on us in our hotel rooms. But I guess we got them back..."

For 57 students, June 2002 was an unforgettable month.

June Memories

Sophomore Brian Scott -

"My friends and I played laser tag a lot. Yeah...we had some nice farmers' tans after that."

Senior Tyler Strodtman-

"I chased girls who then ran away very, very quickly"

Freshman Emily Janssen-

"I swam on ACAC this summer. It was hard; we had to get up at 6:30 in the morning."

Sophomore Sarah Hanson-

"I jumped on the trampoline with the sprinkler on under it."

Senior Shawna Simpson-

"I went to Canada this Summer."

Senior Alan Todd-

"Canada, eh?"

Survey:

Seniors, what did you do this summer?

"I worked nearly everyday for two months just so that I could sell my life away for a new car in five minutes."

Tommy Drake

"I spoke French with lots of little kids for seven weeks and they only paid me $300."

Amelia Koford

"The Europe trip was the best time of my life. How many people can say they traveled Europe with eighteen of their good friends?"

Abby Cochren

"I went on ASP and I hit my foot with a pick axe, cut my lip on a broken bottle, broke a swing, and ran into a window with my face."

Josh Popelka

C'mon Roxy, Light My Fire- Attempting to start a fire, senior Roxanne Medley participates in a camping trip along with fellow seniors Nikia Campbell, Krista Shafer, and Steph Wells-Gray. The girls enjoyed being on their own in the wilderness and burning physics homework. (photo by Wells-Gray)

I'm Workin' On the Railroad- Working with his church group on a community service project in Appalachia, senior Gavin White helps to build a retaining wall for a less fortunate family. Trips to the Appalachian Mountain Region taught students many valuable lessons about different cultures within their own country. The Appalachian Service Project (ASP) is an annual week-long trip for many high school church youth groups. (photo by Katherine Beavers)

July Memories

Senior Beth Raske-

"I laid on the beach ... well ... actually it was the sandbar."

Senior Val Andronova-

"I went to Russia and bought lots of expensive shoes!"

Senior Trevor Brown-

"I went on a bloody long uni-cycle ride and my bum was sore as shaz afterwards."

Sophomore Tia Cosby-

"I spent the summer in the Texas sun chillin' with my older sister."

Senior Ashley Stephan-

"I had a job where I made tons of money and got a great tan."

Sophomore Laura Logsdon- "My friends and I started a kickball club. We played it and other silly games like when we were kids."

They Look So Cute- Taking a moment to enjoy simple amusements, senior Mark Shirbourn smashes his face into plastic with a fellow three-year-old on an ASP trip. Many students seemed to forget age and maturity during the summer months but quickly found it when school began in the fall. (photo by K. Beavers)

Returning TP To Its Mother- Keeping the Senior tradition, students TPe'd the high school the day before returning to school for the 2002 fall semester. "So what if we ran all the way to Schilleter village. Senior tradition was kept alive," senior Allison Burke said. (photo by A. Burke)

Dea Clark-

"I sat around, you know, on my butt."

Alex Saide-

"I was humiliated because I had to take Driver's Ed in Des Moines. I was the oldest in the class and I had to get up at 6:00 A.M. every day."

Kim Buss-

"I don't remember. It was so long ago."

Josh Inyang-

"I practiced being a lazy senior. By the time school started I was very good at it."

Sarah Klinkel-

"I drove for 25 hours in the car with my family. It was an awful experience."

Allison Mohlke-

"I laid low, you know what I mean."

What's going to happen next?- Spending one of her many free nights of the summer at Wal-Mart, senior Steph Wells-Gray dresses up with a high pony-tail and boa while looking longingly in Eyore's eyes. When students couldn't find anything to do, many often wandered around stores looking for fun things to play with. (photo courtesy of Steph Wells-Gray)

Reporting For Duty

Mission 002: Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to track down the students of Ames High as they endure the heartache of the first day back to school. Try not be fooled following your target to football games as they may be dressed in silly get-ups or disguises . If necessary, dive into the murky depths of the pool or chase cross country runners round and round as they compete. Go to any lengths, even if it means posing as a candidate for Homecoming. If you fail to complete this mission students will continue to bleed orange and black.

ATTACK OF THE CUSTODIANS!

Story by Anna Kemis and Ben Barclay

As the summer season nears its end, students begin to dread the future: 180 days of schooling. First on the agenda for many juniors and seniors is the annual decoration of the Ames High campus the night before the first day of school. Armed with Angel Soft ammunition, the students head for the trees, parking lot, and practice football fields for a night of spirit and enjoyment. But after many years of only having to deal with the police, the pupils

"It was a fun night running from the law!" - Senior Allison Burke arrived at the school to meet the custodial staff bearing video cameras and flashlights.

Juniors and seniors looked to each other with puzzled glances, not knowing whether to continue or turn around and head home. Finally, someone took the initiative and tossed a roll into a tree, and the battle began. Students threw toilet paper; custodians took it down. Custodians threatened to turn in certain people; students ignored them. The custodial staff was powerless against the massive group of students. All was well, until some unwanted visitors showed up.

Squeaky Clean- Removing toilet paper from the bushes, custodian Vince Simon tiredly tosses TP into the plastic bag he wields. An anonymous source contacted Simon and his crew warning them of the possible landscaping actions that could occur later that night. (photo by Allison Burke)

With their blue and red lights flashing, the police slowed to a stop, waltzed out of their Chevy Impalas, and slammed their car doors. At first in search of a peaceful agreement, the police simply asked the students to leave. However, most of the students ignored the warnings and continued to decorate the school grounds. The police were forced to take secondary action. They chased the students down the bike path through the forest that connects Ames High with University Village. Both police officers on foot and in cars chased the AHS pupils off campus property. The students took refuge at University Village, waiting for the coast to be clear until heading back to the school. Once they reached the fields of Ames High, the students stopped to admire their work. "It was a fun night running from the law!" senior Allison Burke said.

After an eventful evening, they headed home to get a few hours of sleep before the big day. The soft, white ribbons decorating the school grounds took a great amount of work to clean up, but some people actually seem to appreciate it. "I realized how important and special it was, and ever since then, I can tolerate it," custodian Vince Simon said. Simon denied any post-aggression toward the juvenile delinquents.

SEPTEMBER 11TH

A Day of Remembrance

Story by: Nikia Campbell and Kelly Scheppler

The mood was somber on September 11th, 2002. Many students had wished the day to be a holiday, and although that was not granted, the school did provide events of remembrance including singing songs, tying ribbons on trees, and signing a banner.

As students headed into the school after the events were over and the day had started, students continued to reflect on last year's acts of terrorism. Classes stopped their usual activities to hold large discussions about how September 11th changed things.

"September 11th has changed the way I think about America . . ." - Senior Liz Mettille

"People are more aware of having to be safe wherever they go, especially traveling. People are more aware of the people around them and what they are doing," math teacher Judy Brunner said. When asked about the school's response to the events, some students felt it was not enough. "September 11th has changed the way I think about America in general. I was expecting a lot more; in the least, an assembly," senior Liz Mettille said.

Songs of Solidarity-In remembrance of September 11th, juniors Diane Wilson, Jessica Balvanz, Keighley Fowler, Bethany Wagner, and Liz Geske sing patriotic songs along with other Concert Chorus members. The songs helped set the mood on this day of reflection and memorium. (photo by Peter Miller)

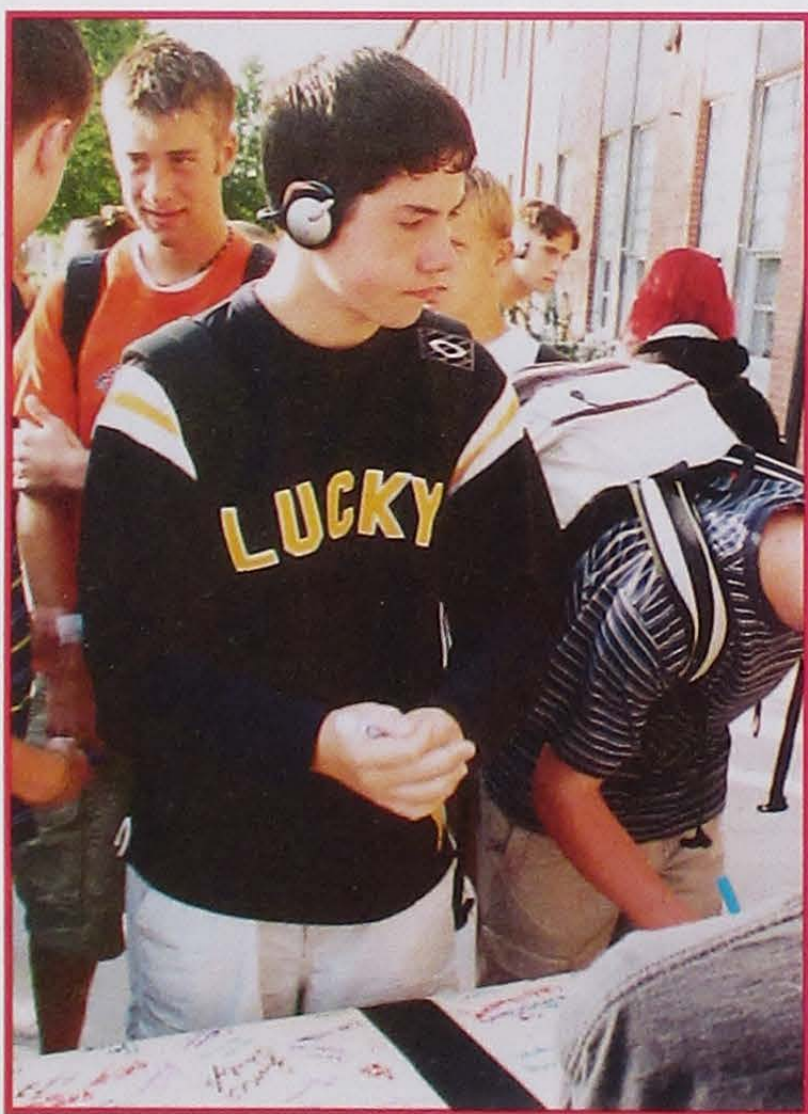

Other students chose to wear red, white and blue or American flag pins to express their opinions. Some students even opted for prayer. "Prayer helped me to deal with 9-11 because it made me think of the people and that I was helping them in a way that I could," junior Samantha Davis said.

Despite the fact that many students felt there should have been more done in remembrance of September 11th, many also felt that by paying too much attention, the terrorists were getting what they wanted.

A lot of students felt that we shouldn't let this interrupt our everyday lives for very long. For example, a year after the Pearl Harbor attacks there was no mention of the tragedy in the media. Although this is obviously an extreme example, the coverage could have been less graphic a year later.

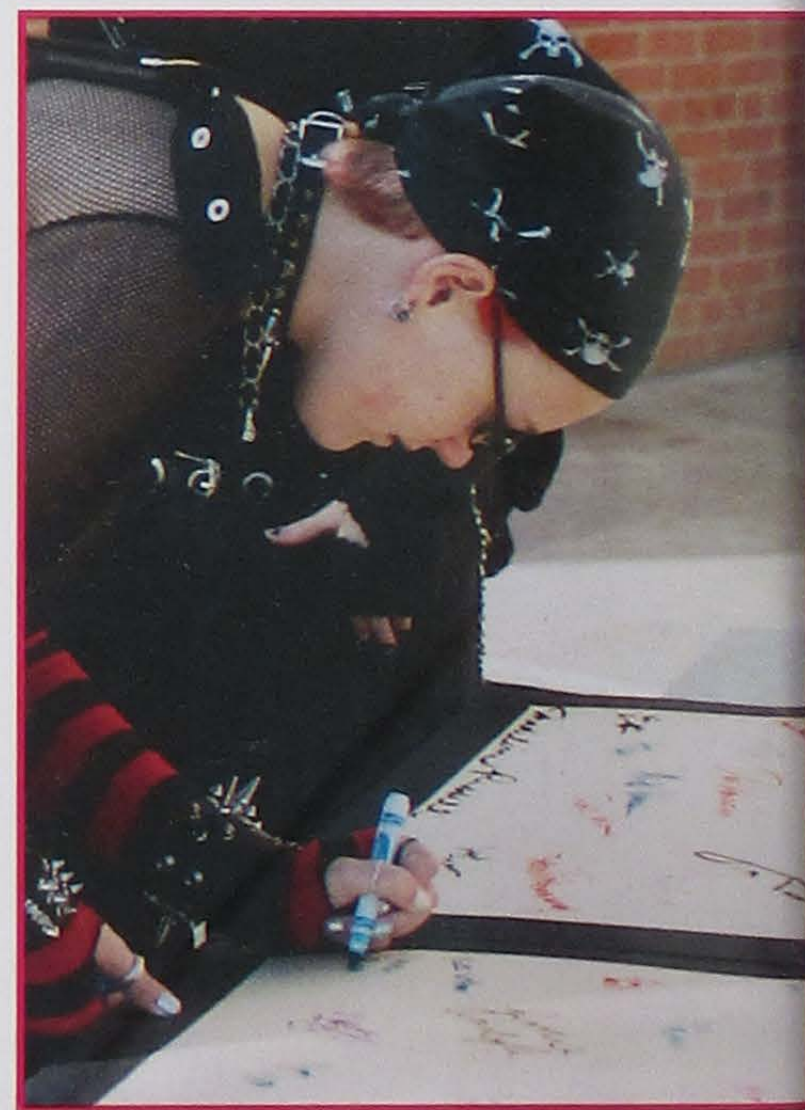

"Each person has their own way of remembering the events of September 11th. Some people want to remember without reliving the horror through the graphic images of that day," senior Allison Burke said.

September 11th, 2002 proved to be a day of remembrance for all in many different ways.

Royal Procession- Riding in the Homecoming Parade, senior Homecoming Court members Ben Comstock and Latisha Myers wave to the crowd. "We were freezing in that convertible, but the parade was awesome. We ate more candy than we threw!" Myers said. (photo by Jenny Dobson)

This Little Piggy- Getting ready for the homecoming dance, freshman Katie Elliott puts the finishing touches on her pedicure. Many freshman were nervous for their first high school dance experience, but Elliott remained calm. "It seems like it will be a lot like eighth grade formal," Elliott said. (photo by Rachel Elliott)

Putt Putt, Looks Like Candy- Senior golfers Matt Wierson, Charles Theesfield, and Nathan Porter ride on their float in the Homecoming Parade. "I got to ride along because I'm the manager. My job was great; it made me feel really important, and the guys were entertaining," Theesfield said. (photo courtesy of Sarah Bean)

Poster Picasso- Using her artistic abilities, senior Abby Cochren paints a poster to promote the Homecoming Grill-Out. Cochren was a member of the publicity crew who worked into the wee hours of the morning making signs. (photo by Cathy Compton)

TIGERS CAUGHT IN A WHIRLWIND

By: Christen Calentine and Rose Sibbel

When players and sports fans arrived at the new Valley stadium on October 4th, they looked in awe at the eight-million-dollar stadium. The varsity football team had a challenge set before them. It was Valley's homecoming, and their football team was ranked first in the state; most fans were just hoping for a close football game. After the first half, doubts of winning crossed many loyal Ames High fans' minds while feelings of victory soared high among the many

"I was willing to do anything for that win..." Junior Rickey Thompson

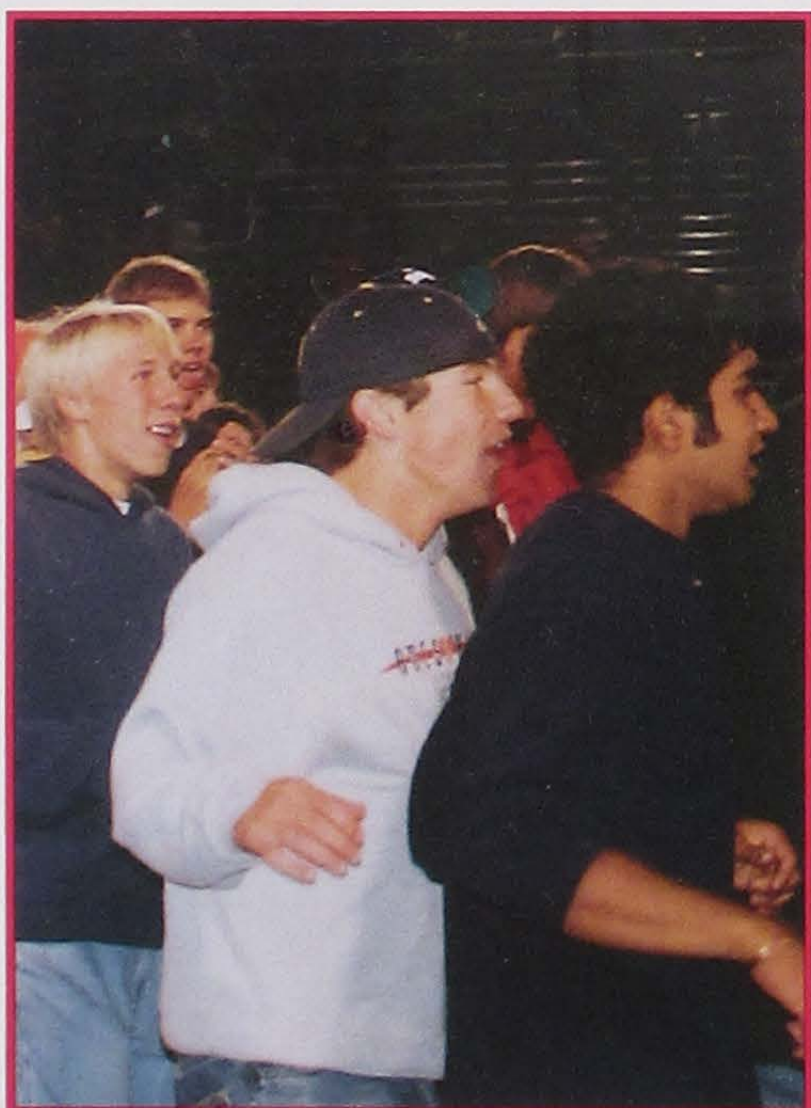

Valley fans and alumni who packed the seats.

While in the locker room during half time, coach Bruce Vertanan inspired the football players to come out with more determination and motivation than what was displayed during the first half. The first to display that determination was junior Ricky Thompson, who put the first points on the scoreboard for the Little Cyclones. "It was exciting to score the first touchdown of the night for Ames. It got me pumped up and ready to score again. I was willing to do anything for that win, and I think that is what helped us to succeed,"

On To A Victory- After a six overtime victory over Valley, varsity football players raise their helmets in a show of their excitement. "I will never forget how I felt when we won. We will always be known as the first team to beat Valley in their brand new stadium," senior Jake Wagner said. (photo by A. Burke)

Thompson said. The defense did their part too, keeping the Tigers scoreless throughout the rest of the second half. Junior Luk Chittenden scored the second touchdown to tie up the game, which sent it into the first overtime. Fans came alive and the football players battled back and forth for the chance to earn their school a victory. In the second overtime, senior Chris Bystrom missed a field goal leading to a third overtime. Finally, in the sixth and final overtime, Valley kicked a field goal and senior Ian Smith made a touchdown to bring the Little Cyclones to a victory. "I was pretty confident that we were going to beat Valley because we had never lost to them," Smith said. "After we won, it was the greatest feeling in the world." Bystrom made five additional points in the overtimes to contribute to the Cyclone victory. Ames had beaten Valley for the second year in a row, and made history by playing in the second-longest football game in Iowa history. "It was cool that we beat Valley during their homecoming week. I think we helped them get a feel for their new 8 million-dollar stadium. Storming the field and taking pictures after the game was awesome," senior Rose Sibbel said. With an amazing seven touchdowns by Thompson and Chittenden, the junior and senior classes have yet to lose to Valley in a football game.

Flooding The Field- After a victory over Valley, students rush the field. "We played awesome! The offense and defense were both amazing," senior Justin McGeeney said. (photo by Allison Burke)

We Rule!- After claiming victory for the second year in a row over Valley, junior Cody Burgduff celebrates. "It was so fun celebrating our win. The fans were awesome, storming the field. It was amazing," Burgduff said. (photo by Rose Sibbel)

Survey:

What intramural sport would you like to see at AHS?

"Intramural Raquetball, because raquetball is cool."

Freshman Jacob Balough

"Intramural Football, because there are a lot of girls who say they'd be good and I'd like to prove them wrong."

Sophomore Ross Marsden

"Intramural Co-ed Wrestling, because it's boys wrestling girls!"

Junior Tyler Barrett

"Intramural Badminton, because I have mad ninja I-Bad skills and I want the world to see them."

Senior Stephen Leeds

Hungry, Why Wait?-With nothing else to do in class, sophomore Abby Gaul decides to sample her shoe. Toward the end of class periods, students who were bored sometimes opted to do unusual things with their freetime. Unusual happenings occurred the closer the clock came to lunch. # MAKING THE BAND

Story by Cathy Compton and Rachel Elliott

On Friday night, October 25, while most students were at the Marshalltown football game, a select group of band, choir, and orchestra students sacrificed their usual weekend agendas. All-State auditions were held the next day, and these dedicated musicians, representing Ames' finest, stayed home in order to get a few more hours of sleep, work out a tricky scale

"To my surprise, not only was I accepted, but they spelled my name right!"
Junior Kai Martin

on their instrument, or mark their music for the last time before the much anticipated audition. On Saturday, October 26, Indianola High School transformed into a giant practice room. "The gym is crazy," junior Andrea Vos said. "Everyone is listening to each other practice, then working themselves into a tizzy because of what they hear. It can be downright scary."

Cut It Out- After being accepted as an alternate All-State choir member, junior Jimmy Roach cuts his name off of the list of tenors. When the lists were posted, students tore down the yellow rolls of paper to save their names as mementos of their accomplishments. (photo by Cathy Compton)

"I really just wanted a better audition this year," junior Kai Martin said. "Then, a friend came running over to me in the cafeteria shouting 'Congratulations!' I was really surprised." An impressive number of Ames High students were accepted this year. Ted Brimeyer, Trevor Brown, Ben Cheney, Scott Johnson, Britta Larson, Kai Martin, and Emily Smith made All-State Choir; Cathy Compton and Jimmy Roach were alternates. Laura Beeman, Megan Greving, Emily Lowry, Andrea Vos, Ben Nerdig, Annie Vleck, Jessica Balvanz, Neal Marsinghe, Sarah McClanahan, Leslie Koppenhaver, Andrea Miller, Scott Simpkins, and Jonathan Park made All-State Band; Maggie Larabee, Andrew Kang, and Walter Hyde were alternates. Hannah Park, Hangyul Kim, Anu Biswas, Luke Lowry, Caleb Polashek, Laura Kim, Brandon Lee, Veronica Hindt, and Aviv Luban made the All-State Orchestra.

License To Chill

Mission 003: Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to track down the students of Ames High as everyone has settled in to their respected activities. Try not to be alarmed as you experience a time warp in preparation for the Madrigal feast. If necessary, track students beyond the doors of Ames High all the way to Cedar Rapids to support Ames High volleyball at state. Follow the students as they take advantage of their first real break and let loose under the "mistletoe". Try not to get overly stimulated as students cram their brains over last minute facts for semester exams. If you fail to complete this mission, the students will have trouble continuing to enjoy themselves within the whirlwind of diverse activities.

AHS AT STATE TOURNAMENT

Enthusiastic students journey to the frozen tundra of Cedar Rapids to see their beloved volleyball team

Story by: Ben Barclay and Meg Wade

After a long week without a break in sight, many AHS students wanted to journey down to the tundra of Cedar Rapids on Friday after 3rd period. Some kids rode the packed Spirit buses, while other students chose to provide their own transportation. At precisely 8 AM, the US Cellular Center filled to the brim and the match began. "This year there was just a lot more pressure," junior Jessica Keefe said. "I think [the pressure] just got to us." Key

"This year there was a lot more pressure." - Junior Jessica Keefe players came through strong, but it wasn't enough to beat Ankeny. The team, however, had an awesome season leading up to state with a 41-3-2 record, the highest an AHS team has ever had. This included regular season wins against dangerous opponents like Dowling, Ankeny, Council Bluffs-Lincoln, and the "omnipotent" Valley.

Throughout the week before state, both the back and the front lobby were standing-room-only due to the large lines of people waiting to buy tickets and priors or six-dollar T-shirts to support the team.

Finally, on November 15th, 280 students with priors were ready to leave and support their team.

Yearbook advisor James Webb and his wife were the chaperones for the Spirit Buses. "The bus ride was long, the students were loud, and my daughter Ashley was listless," Webb said. Webb and other adults chaperoned the 80 kids on the two buses. Other students elected to drive themselves to Cedar Rapids. Junior Anna Kemis was one of those students. "Driving was way better than riding the sweaty, smelly, disgusting, old, yellow school bus. We were pimpin' it up in our Camry with walkie-talkies to keep in touch with the rest of our caravan," Kemis said.

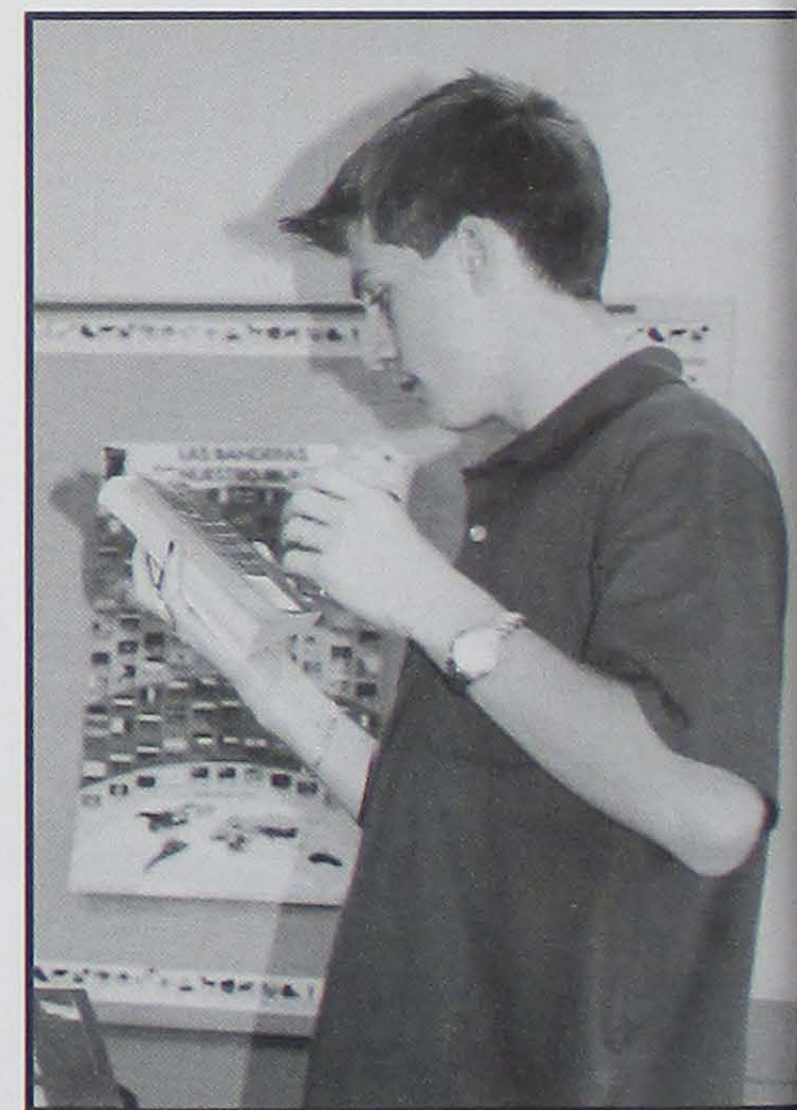

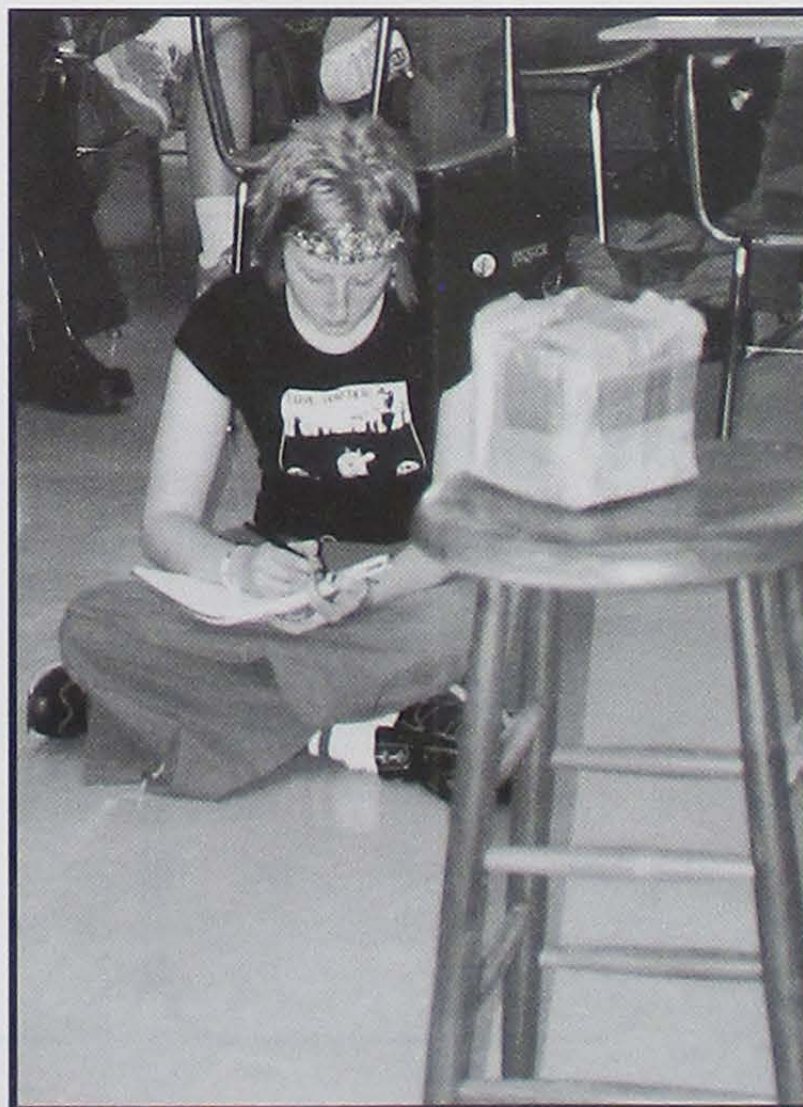

When the fans of the AHS volleyball team who journeyed to Cedar Rapids to support their team in a mild fashion finally arrived, they had to put up with extreme verbal abuse of Ankeny fans. R-E-S-P-E-C-T and P-O-R-T-S-M-A-N-S-H-I-P were not the chants coming from Ankeny's section.

Although Ames fans were better behaved, more sportsmanlike, and more devoted, the Ames volleyball team won only one of three sets against Ankeny. Nevertheless, Ames played hard and the students enjoyed the adventure.

Senior survey: if your life were a movie, what would your theme song be?

"Flavor of the week"

"I think that this song describes my whirlwind of emotions. I change my mind all the time!"

Senior Shannon Kerper

"Teenage Dirtbag"

"I am kind of proud of the fact that I am notorious at Ames High for never showering and hiding my greasiness."

Senior Claire Morris

"Loser"

"Because of my lazy disposition, love of sleep, and lack of friends, I think that the Beck song really describes me."

Senior Jon Allen

"Barbie Girl"

"The Aqua song would be my theme because I live in a barbie world; I am blond haired, blue eyed, and HOTT!"

MADRIGAL DINNER

Bringing the "Olde" back to Ames High

by Nikia Campbell

Ye Olde Madrigal Dinner. An event that, for over a decade, has been part of Ames High tradition. December 6th, 7th, and 8th were days students displayed their talents in singing, acting, brass, orchestra, serving, and jestering.

104 students participated in the dinner and countless more family, friends, and community members came to Northminster Presbyterian Church, a church twice as big as the one used previous, to experience it. "It was fun to see the students dressed up in costumes of the period and the jester was amusing. The dinner really promotes the school," teacher James Webb said. Students enjoyed participating in the dinner because of what came out of it. "I enjoyed seeing the finished product: the singers, servers, and actors," senior Katherine Beavers said. Parents, teachers and friends enjoyed watching the dinner and the interaction they had with the madrigal singers. "My favorite part was sitting at the head table and passing notes back and forth with each other. I also loved being married to Scott Johnson," senior Cathy Compton said.

Five had what seemed to be a smaller part but was among the loudest. "I was in the madrigal brass. I played fanfairs," senior Maggie Larabee said. The madrigal band played authentic fanfairs from the period. Along with the fanfairs, there was also live music for people to hear. The Madrigal Harpist was senior Michele Anderson. "It was great to be with the madrigal players; they are a wonderful group of talented people," Anderson said.

The madrigal singers worked for several months, for the dinner, to prepare their voices and learn the songs. They practiced at school in the morning everyday and then for two hours every Monday night. Under their own direction, the singers had to work with themselves to be sure of how their piece would turn out.

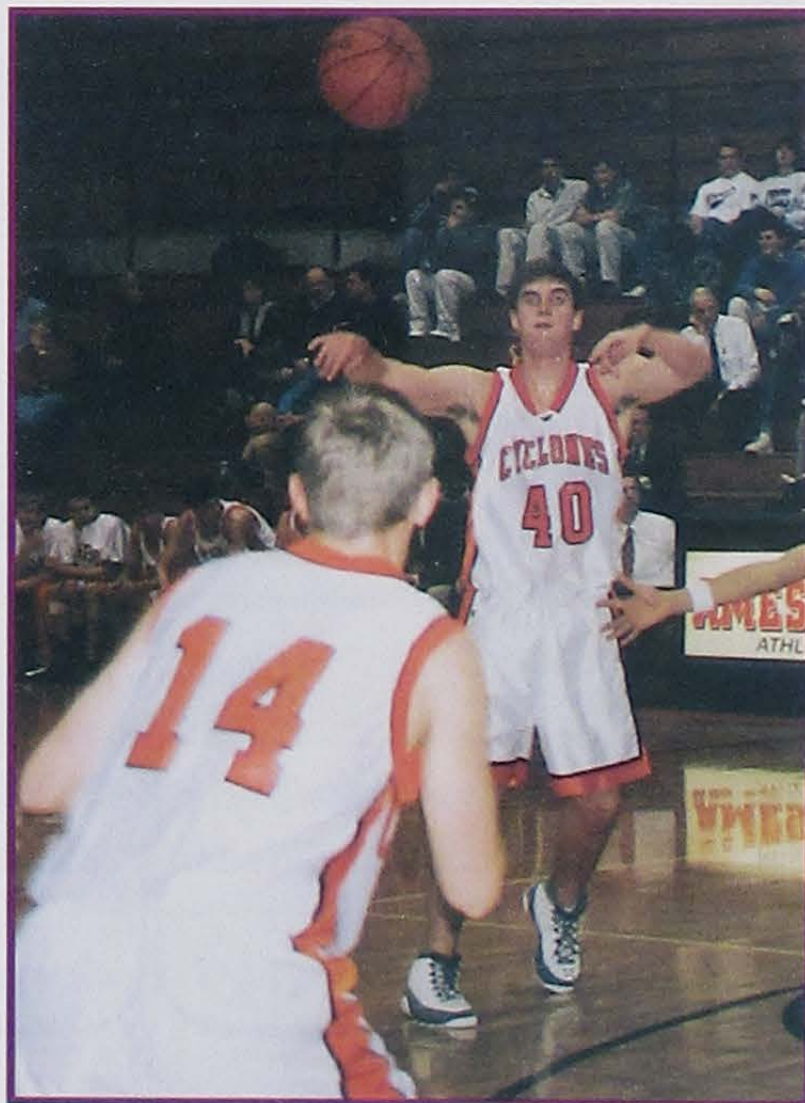

Making the costumes was another thing the students had to do themselves. The costumes looked great this year. Iowa State University borrowed them for their madrigal dinner.

The dinner was a success and many people's favorite yet unexpected part was when "Mike Heitzman kissed the new piñata head!" junior Ben Ward said.

FOOTBALL FORMAL

By: Christen Calentine and Rose Sibbel

One of the most anticipated events of winter break is the annual Winter Formal. Organized by the Senior Girls' Club, this year's theme was Once Upon A Midnight Dream. There was a slight change from previous tradition, and the dance was held in the Prairie Banquet room at the Gateway Center instead of the usual Sunroom at the Memorial Union. Winter Formal was a time for girls to ask boys in a traditional "Saide Hawkins" dance. Girls

"I couldn't help but be pulled into watching the game by my home boys."

- Junior Brett Maysent

were also expected to pay for dinner before and tickets to the dance.

This year's Winter Formal Court included seniors Amanda Conley, Katherine Beavers, Kristin Emery, Julie McElroy, Leah Boyd, Rachel Curtis, Alex Saide, Mark Norris, Andrew Oftedal, Justin McGeeney, Allan Todd, and Josh Popelka. During the middle of the dance, Mark Norris and Katherine Beavers were announced King and Queen. "I was ecstatic and a little surprised. It's just a nice memory to add to an already-memorable senior year," Beavers said.

Formal Feast-After spending a long evening of dancing, freshman Emily Drapal snacks on a fruit cup. Many students spent the hours after the dance at friends' houses, watching movies, eating, talking about the dance, and catching up on some shut eye. (photo by Katherine Beavers)

Some students who felt that the was not entertaining enough left the to watch the the Citrus Bowl in wh University of Iowa and University of ern California faced head to head. joyed the dance and my date but I co help but be pulled into watching the by my home boys. What kind of man I be if I didn't watch one of the biggest of the year?" junior Brett Maysen. Some students found it hard to walk the hallway due to the crowd around large television screen displaying the

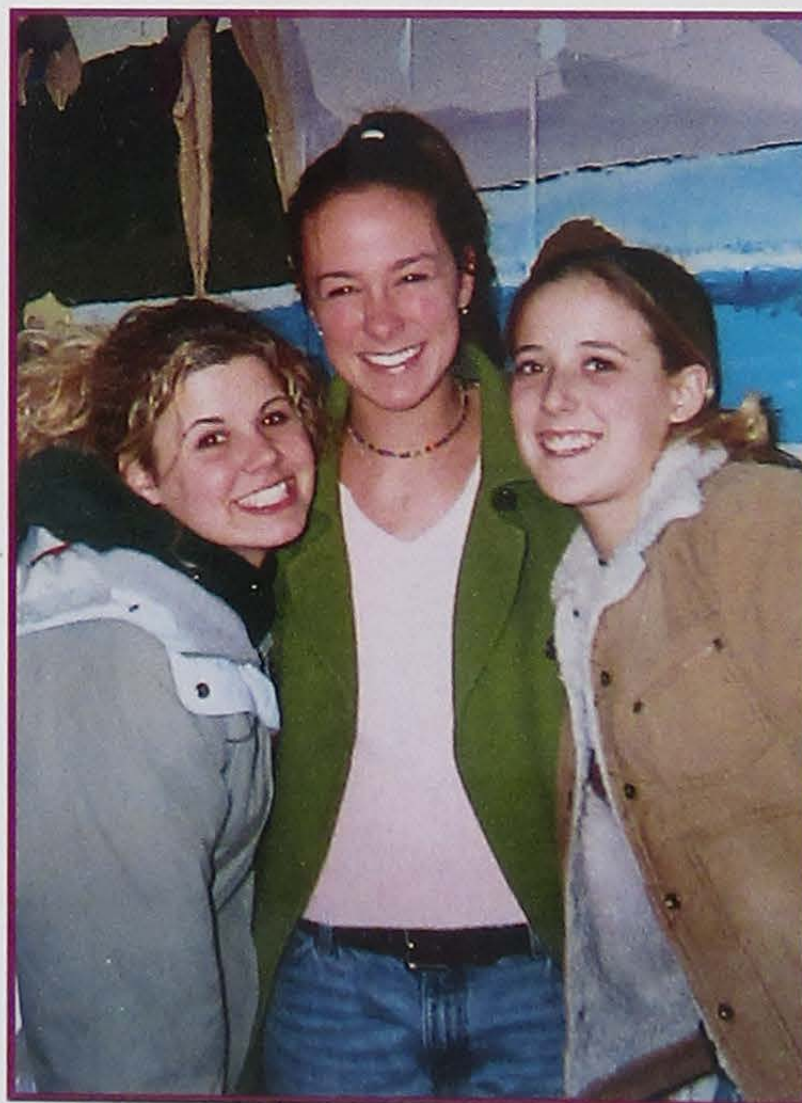

On top of that, some students complained about the lack of space available to dance in the Prairie room. Some students even found themselves slow dancing with their backs to the punch bowl. "I enjoyed Winter Formal in the Sun room more than I did in the Prairie room. It was way too crowded and I hated having to dance next to the punch bowl or even in a corner block," junior Ashley Sornsen said. Some students also felt that the room was stuffy and way too over-crowded.

Although the space was limited, students enjoyed the dance and some even enjoyed watching the football game. "Even though it was hard to dance, and I could barely see my date, I enjoyed watching the football game and getting to wear a tux," Maysent said.

Smilin' for Jesus- Taking a break from school, senior Anna Steele and juniors Emily Tuttle and Megan Baughman spend a weekend at Dowling High School on a church retreat. La Cuccha Racha- Laughing at the spectacle before her, senior Annie Vleck tries on a Sombrero at La Fuente for her 17th birthday. "It was muy divertido," Vleck said with a laugh. (Photo courtesy of Annie Vleck)

Sarah Bohn- "I enjoyed hanging out with my friends and spending time with family. It's my favorite time of year – even without snow!"

Lissa Swaim- "I hung out with my favorite people, the basketball team, because basketball is my favorite sport and my favorite thing to do. Spending time with them is always fun because you never know what will happen."

Oh My, It's A Ghost- During Winter Break, juniors Sarah Bohn, Katie Norlin and Lissa Catus take a moment to give each other facials. Winter Break was a time for students to take care of their mind as well as their bodies. (photo courtesy of Sarah Bohn)

WHAT WAS YOUR FAVORITE ACTIVITY TO DO OVER THE "NO SNOW" BREAK?

Chuck Stevens- "I traveled with the circus as the talking mute man, entertaining thousands of fans with my great talents. Everyone was astonished by my abilities. Honestly it was amazing."

TESTS AT THEIR BEST

Semester Test Deep Thought: "If quizzes are quizzical, what are tests?"

They were the longest of tests, they were the hardest of tests. It was a rude awakening for freshmen, and the beginning of the end for seniors. Students crammed until there was no room left, but were freed for an extended weekend. Testing periods lasted a grueling hour and a half, but the three day finals schedule allowed for more free periods than ever before. And finally, the semester tests of 2003 were over before we knew it.

It was a rude awakening for freshmen, and the beginning of the end for seniors.

Around semester testing season, tension is high, and morale is low at Ames High School. Concerned about the health of students, and in an effort to ensure that each student reaches his/her full potential on all tests, Principal Michael McGrory formed a committee of teachers and students to discuss a new schedule for finals this year. The result was a one day extension from the previous two-day allotment for semester tests. "It takes time away from the classroom," teacher K Daddow said, who gives the new system a big thumbs down. Students most were in favor of more test time. "It just made it a lot more of a relaxing atmosphere," senior Ar Faeth said.

From World Studies 9 to AP Calculus, the media center became a silent study haven for students of all subjects during the week. "My hardest final was probably naming all of the rocks for Earth Science-- nobody in my class finished!" freshman Auburn Robertson said. "But at least I had plenty of time to study for it."

No matter who you talk to, the best part of finals is the feeling after finishing up that last test, not to mention the long weekend that follows.

Closing In

Mission 004: Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to track down the students of Ames High as they attempt to entertain themselves during the most boring quarter of the year.

Clues: Watch as students travel from three-foot snow drifts into the not-much-warmer ice rinks for hockey games. Disguise yourself as a wild and crazy member of the Ames High Storm at basketball games (and try not to be kicked out!). Be sure to avoid getting trampled as students flee from the building when the Friday before Spring Break finally arrives.

GUYS AND DOLLS

AHS students perform musical February 7-9, 2003.

Story by Ben Barclay and Meg Wade

After the success of Bye Bye Birdie, performed last year at AHS, the Fine Arts department planned another fabulous musical for the 2002-2003 school year. The musical is Guys and Dolls, a story based on gamblers that risk it all against the Save-A-Soul Mission. In the musical, Sky Masterson comes to town and takes on Sarah Brown, a bible-pounder from the mission. Sky Masterson is played by senior Alex Saide, while Sarah Brown is played by

I was cold—for obvious reasons.

-Senior Madeleine Russell

senior Cathy Compton. Meanwhile, a parallel story is the interaction between Nathan Detroit (played by junior Ben Ward) and Adelaide (played by junior Emily Tuttle). Nathan and Adelaide have been engaged for 14 years, and Nathan is a bit reluctant to give up his gambling for a family. In addition to the main characters, a snoop detective, two mobsters, and the mission's marching band make the musical spectacular.

Complimenting the great actors is peppy piano music provided by faculty members Karen

Harmonizing in Havana-

After dinner in "Cuba," seniors Cathy Compton and Alex Saide waltz the night away to the tune of "I've Never Been in Love Before" during Guys and Dolls. "After I sobered up, it was a lot easier to sing," Compton confessed. (photo by Sarah Bohn)

Stewart and Steve Linn. A marvelous design includes streets, sewers, and a club. The nightclub scenes feature dances performed by the Hot Box Debutantes. Junior Melinda Heitzman and Erin Thatcher returned again this year to bring the music to life with their choreography.

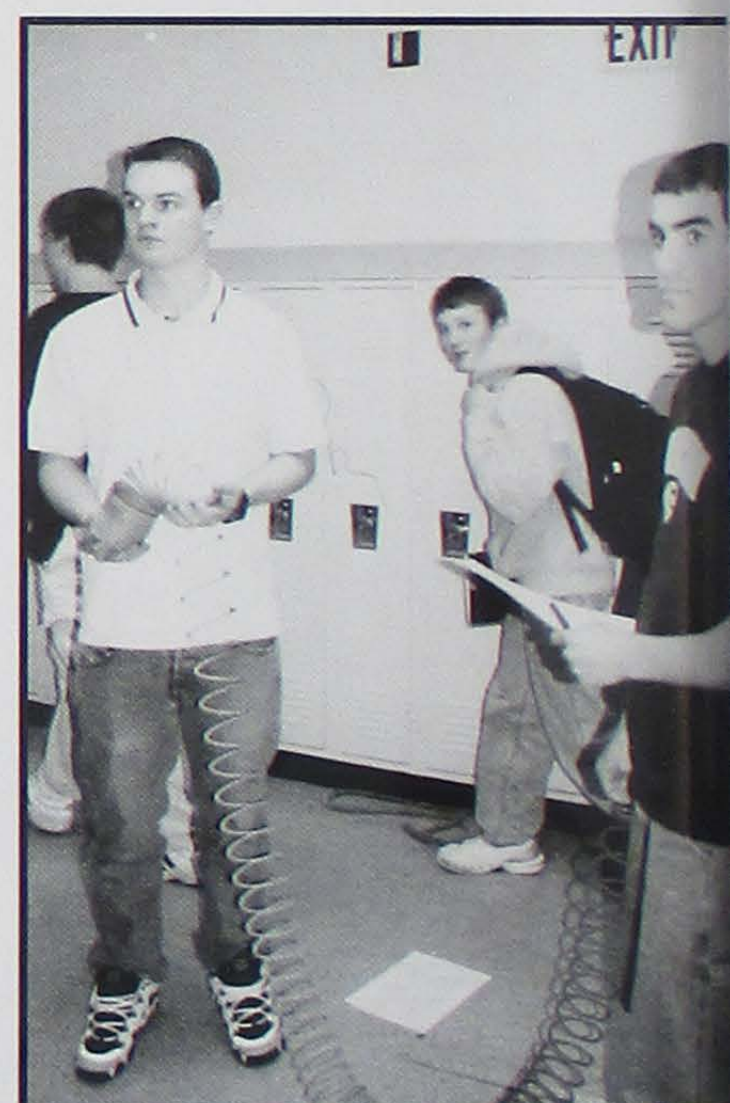

The musical left an impression on many members of AHS. "I wish I had talent all in one," junior Katie Knapp said. "I was surprised at the talent that was possessed," added sophomore Marasinghe. "I really enjoyed acting with my brother [Ross Kopenhaver]. He makes a horse," senior Leslie Kopenhaver said. Madeleine Russell commented on the Hot Box debutantes. "Guys & Dolls was a fun time and I thank God every day that I was the bartender for the strip scene," sophomore Ricky Fields said. Senior Madeleine Russell, a Hot Box girl said, "Sometimes I got cold—for obvious reasons."

Still, there are always critics: "Bacardi is not a flavor native to Cuba," junior Matt Peterson said. "Well, the kiss looked real," did she [Compton] really slap him [Saide] asked junior John Chrisinger. All in all, the musical was a success and both SPIRIT and the student body hope to see more in the future.

survey: If you only had $15, what would you do for your sweetheart on Valentine's Day?

Candy and Flowers

I'd give it to Daddy [teacher James Webb] so he could buy me lots of nummy M&Ms. He could buy me a flower, too.

Three-year-old Ashley Webb

Visit the Dollar Store

I'd get her some chocolate in a heart box, a rose, and then take her to the dollar movie of her choice and maybe some drinks.

Senior Peter Miller

A Road Trip

$15 would buy enough gas for a nice drive. Paying the tow truck driver for our return trip would be the only thing...

Senior Greg Bonett

Dinner and a Show

I would take her to an Ames High Drama Production of course! Then we could go to Taco Bell to get anything she wants.

STATE WRESTLING

Strong Finish to Tough Season

By Katherine Beavers

After many ups and downs, the Ames High wrestling team ended the season with an impressive sixth place finish at the state tournament. Four Little Cyclones qualified for state, and one placed individually in addition to the outstanding team finish. "We took our lumps during the year. We placed last place in every tournament, but in districts we placed third," Head Coach Jeff Gibbons said of the turn-around season. The Little Cyclones had a 1-15 record going into districts. But as Gibbons pointed out, "Our team record does not really reflect our ability, as was demonstrated at state."

over the course of three days in Veterans Auditorium in Ames, Moines. As always, attendance was high and the boys competed in front of a packed house.

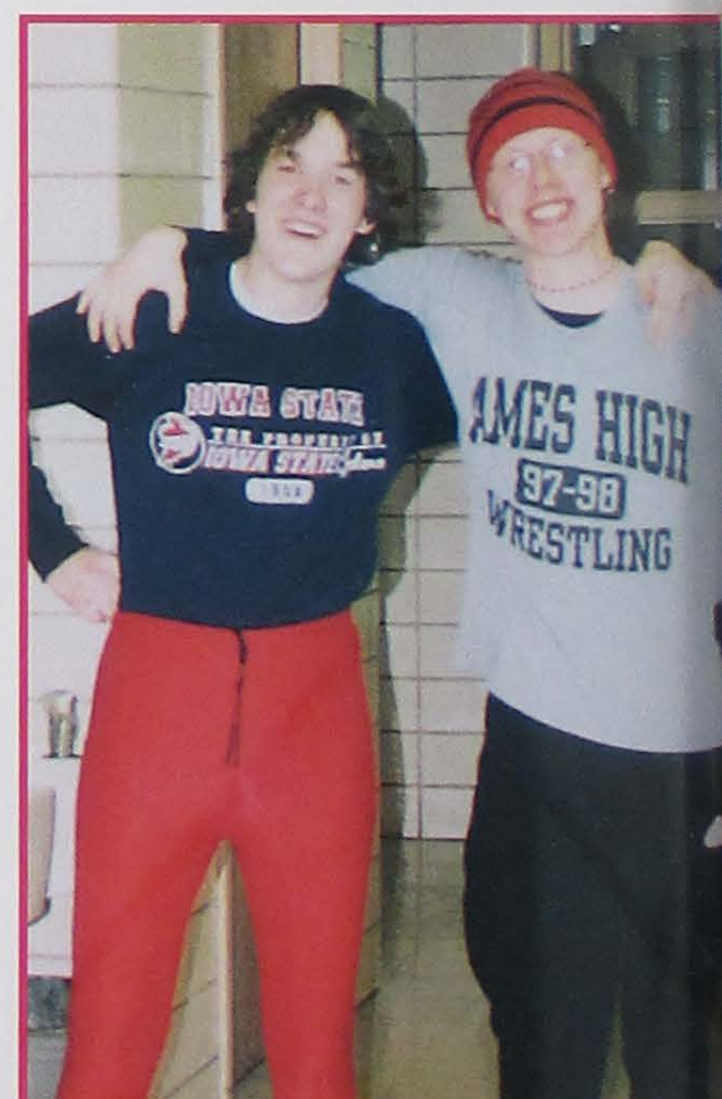

Ames High's state qualifiers for next year were juniors Beau Knock and Matt Young and seniors Dan Metzger and Josh Marker. Marker claimed the runner-up position in his class, a second place overall finish in the state tournament for his weight class. Both Young and Metzger were only one win away from winning in the tournament. As a team, Ames placed ahead of all but four teams taking sixth place.

With two returning state qualifiers, next season's future already looks bright. The wrestlers pushed through a tough season and came out on top. "We ended it on a high note," Gibbons said. "Now all we have to do is build on this momentum to go into next year."

ALL ABOARD... A TRIP TO MADRID

By: Christen Calentine and Rose Sibbel

In Ames High tradition, students of upper level foreign language classes have the opportunity to take a trip to the native country of these languages, namely Germany, Spain and France. Students spend a week with a family, which teaches them about the culture and helps them gain a better understanding of the language they are studying. This year the Spain trip fell on Spring Break, and what better way to spend a week away from school then in Madrid? SPIRIT decided to follow junior Sarah Klinkel on her trip to Madrid to see what life was like in her one week stay overseas.

"It's definitely a place that I would like to return to in the future."

The worst part of the trip was just waiting through the long flight to get there. However, once everyone finally arrived in Madrid, it was awesome. "My family was really nice. It was fun living with them and becoming immersed in their culture," Klinkel said. "I thought it would be scary to speak only Spanish for an entire week but it really wasn't that bad, and occasionally I was even able to speak English."

YUMMM, Food-Indulging in the local delicacies, junior Sarah Klinkel and seniors Andrea Miller and Latisha Myers munch on Spanish pastries. Students in Spanish 3 and 4 had the opportunity to spend the week of Spring Break in Madrid, Spain. (photo by Jenny Dobson)

Students on the trip were given ample time to explore Madrid and visit a local middle school. "It was great to see the differences between the middle school at Ames and the middle school that I attended when I was there," Klinkel said.

Reflecting back on her experience, Klinkel said, "I think the worst part about the entire trip was the fact that I had to return home. It's definitely a place that I would like to return to in the future. The people were great, the food was great and I absolutely loved the culture. The trip itself was an excellent learning experience."

survey: If you were a spy, where would your safehouse be?

I'd hide in my garage and protect myself with my Sceptor of Doom!

I wouldn't need a safehouse. Let's just say James Bond and I are a bit closer than acquaintances...

Senior Rachel Elliot

I'd hide out in Stonehenge, because most people would be scared to go into that ring of stones and fetch me.

Junior Andy Lamont

I'd work and hide in a Guinness factory in Ireland. I'd blend in.

Mission Accomplished

Mission 004: Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to track down the students of Ames High as they finish the school year and prepare for summer.

Clues: Listen to the band and chorus rehearse graduation music. Watch students rush outside after school to play Ultimate Frisbee. Cheer on track stars at the Drake Relays. Observe students cramming for finals and Advanced Placement tests.

MIND GAMES

Post Prom Victims of Verisimilitude

Story by Meg Wade

The zeal of the daring students on stage enthralled the crowd. Junior Tyler Barrett was ecstatic, "I've wanted to [be hypnotized] since I was a little kid," Barrett admitted. "Every attempt has failed. This time, I was determined to make it work." It worked alarmingly too well. "I'm going to count to ten nice and slow. You're falling into a deeper sleep. Put your head back, relax now," the sound of hypnotist Greg Diamond's voice soothingly lulled the volun-

"I felt so tired and out of it" -junior Tyler Barrett

teers to sleep. Sitting on chairs in a horseshoe formation, the volunteers drifted off, falling on top of each other like dominoes.

Diamond controlled their minds like a puppeteer. He began with little skits, and moved on to bigger displays throughout the show. The audience played a key role in producing applause that fueled the volunteers in their performances. The viewers could almost feel the temperature change as they watched the contestants rip off their clothes, and thirty seconds later, huddle together shivering.

In one of the most outrageous acts, the guys were given the burden of pregnancy and birth, for five minutes. After unbearably, they held their newborns tenderly, whispering, "who did this to me?"

The dream-like journey ended when the hypnotist counted down from ten, but without a little fun. Diamond used his power to leave the volunteers with some semi-less post-hypnotic effects. He promised they would all wake up with renewed energy, but Barrett was still in a daze. He was ushered off stage when he fell into a deep sleep. It wasn't until later that morning that he felt awake. "I remember being really bored and disappointed that it didn't work," recalled Barrett. "I felt so tired and out of it."

Later that evening, he insisted on driving home, with the accuracy of a sleepwalker. Barrett fell asleep at the wheel, hitting a phone pole. Fortunately, he was not injured, and there was little damage. Barrett's accident revealed the danger of hypnotism to his friends. After a frightening experience, most people would not surrender their mind again, but Barrett assures his friends he will do it again next year. The incident resulted in Barrett's growing fascination to learn more about the field of mesmerism and hypnosis. He is currently taking Through the Open Door: Secrets of Hypnosis.

AHS BAND VISITS CHICAGO

Story by Ben Barclay

On most Saturdays at 7 AM, Ames High Drive is as quiet as a library. But it was different on Saturday, May 3rd. On that cloudy morning, about 280 AHS Band students, parents, and faculty climbed onto six coach buses and departed from Ames High on a six-hour voyage to Chicago.

Six Midwest Coach buses trekked across the interstates to the Windy City, with just a short stop at the Welcome Center in Davenport, Iowa.

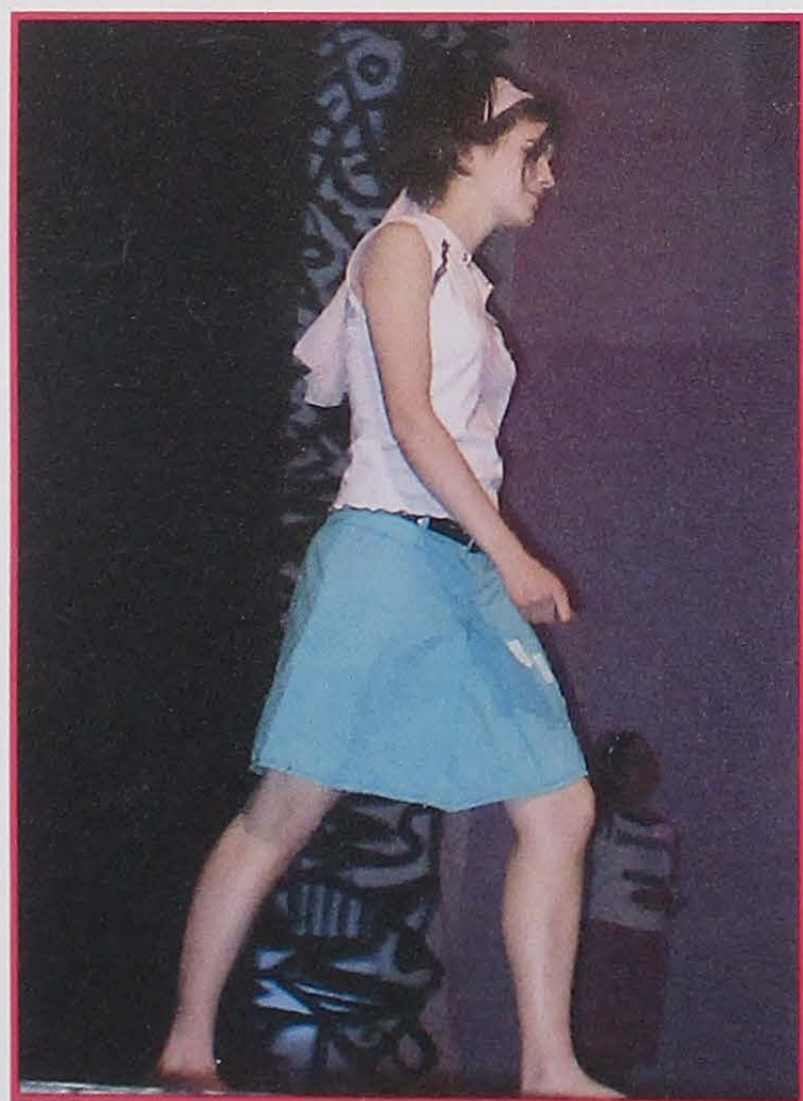

"Metropolitan life: expensive prices, traffic, and thousands of ways to spend the time..."

Once the band arrived at the hotel in Elmhurst, IL, the rest of the afternoon was spent rearranging hotel rooms, swimming, tossing frisbees, and getting ready for a Chicago Symphony Orchestra Concert, directed by Daniel Barenboim. The concert opened many students' minds and left others starving for more. The following morning, the whole AHS Band and chaperones journeyed to Six Flags Great America. Following a brief concert at the gates featuring the marches of Karl King, the band had the rest of the day to spend nauseated from the intense roller coasters such as Superman and King of the Hill.

That night, the band was treated to a performance by the Elmhurst College Jazz Band. After an ovation, the jazz band launched into a famous song "Love Shack," by The B-52s. All students stood up and clapped along with the rhythm section. The next day, the band encountered downtown Chicago. Navy Pier, Magnificent Mile, Shedd Aquarium, Adler Planetarium, and Lincoln Park Zoo were all within reach for students to explore various aspects of metropolitan life: expensive prices, traffic, and thousands of options of ways to spend time. In the PM, all students and adults gathered at Wrigley Field to cheer on America's favorite baseball team: the Cubs. Ball-Park hot dogs, peanuts, and Cracker Jacks were bought by all. In addition, giant foam bear clubs, baseball caps, and other fan wear in hopes of rooting for the team. The Cubs must not have picked up their fans in between 3rd and home; the score was 5 to 3.

Tuesday morning was spent in a lot of traffic jam, followed by a brief visit to Northwestern University, in Evanston, IL, where the Symphonic Band gave a concert to a class. Following the stay at Northwestern, the band explored the Museum of Science and Industry before the long drive home.

GRADUATION 2003

A Glimpse Into the Liberation from Public Schooling

Story by Ben Barclay

There's a time in everyone's life where a feeling of independence finally clicks and one can be free from schooling, parents, and the many expectations of high school society. For many, this moment comes at the time that one graduates. On May 21st, 2003, 370 seniors walked across the stage, received their diploma cases, and turned their tassels. In a whirl of orange and black, the graduates tossed their caps.

"It was worth it, because I'm out of school for good!"
-Senior Peter Miller

To make the event more memorable and special, over a month of open houses were held in homes, parks, and churches for the lucky graduates. Approximately 20,750 postcards were handed out to invitees throughout April and early May. With the amount of graduates, this meant that both adults and students were forced to drive at least 20 miles over the speed limit in a rush to race across town to the next party, since open houses always seemed to be happening at the same time. Eventually, one would make their way into the party, and feelings of nostalgia and memories from preschool slowly back into one's head, making it worthwhile.

On May 20th, the day before graduation, seniors attended the Senior Picnic at Emma McCarthy Lee Park. The seniors were treated to sandwiches catered by Jimmy Johns, music from a professional DJ, games, and conversations with members of the graduating class.

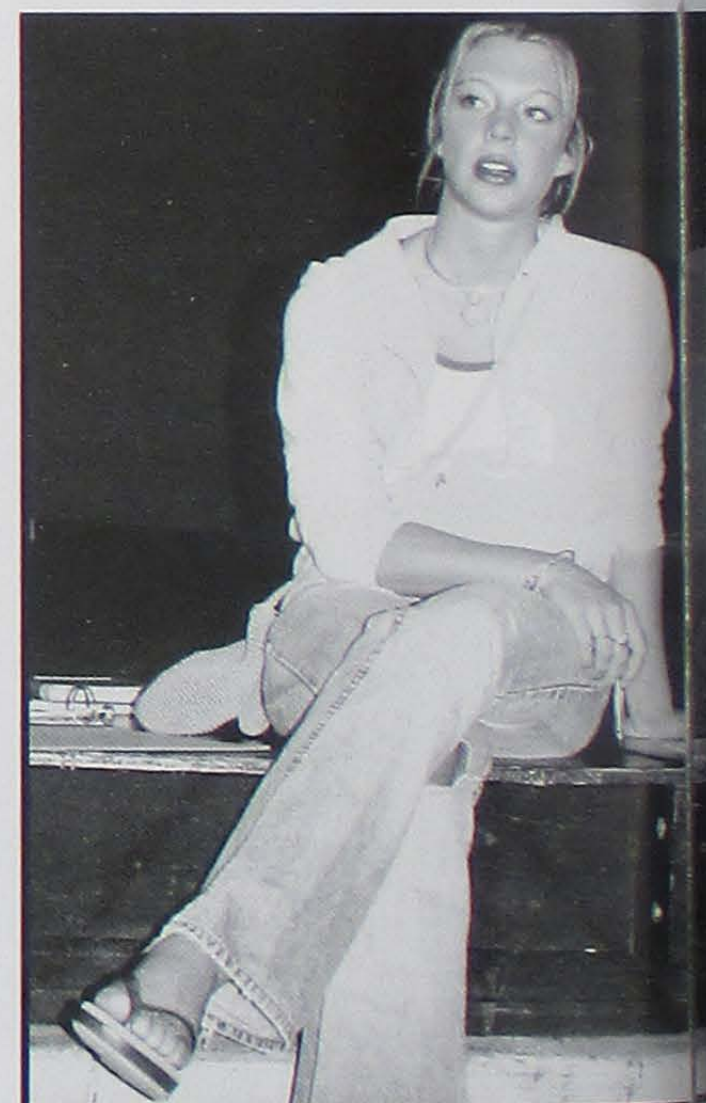

When May 21st finally arrived, seniors crowded into Hilton Coliseum for Commencement. After a dress rehearsal the morning before, soon-to-be graduates experienced the real thing. The band played, the choir sang, and Katie Klotzbach, Trishia, principal Michael McGrory, and school president Jane Acker spoke. For many graduates, it was a blur. "It was long, but I have to admit I fell asleep," [Commencement] was worth it though because I'm out of school for good!" Peter Miller commented. After the turning of the tassels, family members, siblings, and faculty all crowded Hilton's bleachers to congratulate the liberated seniors.

Parties followed the event. House parties, carbonated beverages, junk food, and camaradery were scattered all over town. Graduation 2003 was over.

Caught In the Act

Mission 004: Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to track down the students of Ames High as they play music, participate in sports, and enjoy an array of clubs.

Clues: Before an AHS football game, follow the smokey barbeque smells to a Team Tailgate grill-out. Join the colossal marching band and play your heart out decked from hat to dinkles in brand new uniforms. Jump on your bike with Key Club and watch students giving back to the community at Blue Sky Day. Head to Phashun Klub after school and make a disguise out of duct tape. Peek into the auditorium to watch play practice for Romeo and Juliet.

Mission 006: Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to track down the students of Ames High.

Clues: Don't be fooled by the stagnant appearance of these pictures -- the face of Ames High is constantly changing. Nearly 1600 strong, students evolve and adapt to new weather patterns and new styles. No need to avoid the freshmen, they're just learning to walk in much bigger shoes. Stay away from the sophomores, they'll start asking questions. Study the juniors buried in AP Western Civ textbooks and scribbling out long equations for their THA's. Be careful, you can't blow your cover.

The Usual Suspects

Mission 007: Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to track down the students of Ames High as they complete their final year of high school.

Clues: On the first day of school, senior girls wear cowgirl shirts to show their dominance. Don't step on the senior prank chickens running through the halls. During open-house season, be careful not to get trampled by adoring mobs on the hug circuit. Stay focused as "senior-itis" hits.

Wanted:

Mission 008: Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to track down the students of Ames High hidden behind the Coca-Cola machines lining the halls.

Clues: Follow the trail of bandie bars, cookie dough, coupon books, frozen pizzas, or stadium seats. When walking past the FCS room, you may be drawn to the chocolatey-peanut butter goodness of Mrs. Strasser's scotcharoos. Ration your paper usage, so as not to exploit the school's scarce supply of paper. On Valentine's Day, disguise yourself as Cupid and send Crush Cans to high school sweethearts or play "secret admirer." Thank the local businesses that sponsor and support Ames High activities and students.

What could there be upon this earth more joyous than a baby's birth, especially if that baby is wearing pink? A little girl, just for you, with rosy cheeks and dimples, too. She'll change your life much more than you might think! Today you're singing lullabies, and running every time she cries, but, she'll grow and then, with in the breeze, teeth and knees, one day suddenly, she's your life with her horses, her and ins. You'll each special Because you has shown, know it, she'll
